STRONG FAMILIES

We're Here for RecovHERy— KRISTINA'S STORY:

Kristina began to “lose her grip” when her husband, the father of her small daughter, lost his life. She turned to Santa Maria in 2012 for the first time to begin treatment. For a long while after, she maintained her sobriety and began to build a new life—but then she felt it all “crumbling inside”. She phoned her former SMH counselor, Lucia DePaoli, a phone number she had kept close, and asked if she could return for more treatment. She was accepted with open arms.

Often, recovery does not follow a straight ascent. There are trials and barriers that knock an individual down along the way. It is in the learning from attempts at sobriety where hope emerges from desperation. An individual remembers that there is a community that cares and is willing to assist. Humbly asking for help is the first step to resume the journey.

This time in treatment, Kristina was able to focus on her early childhood trauma and loss through important sessions with her guiding counselor. Her individualized trauma therapy made all of the difference. She began to realize that the early onset of poorly treated childhood depression had hijacked her development and future.

She completed medical detoxification followed by 90 days of treatment at Jacquelyn House. Her daughter waited under the watchful eye of family, whose support and love pulled Kristina through. Then, to her great delight, her seven year old daughter joined her in their new transitional apartment on the Bonita House campus. That first day together, they enjoyed the simple pleasures of the playground and a chance to sit in their new home, braiding hair.

Kristina is determined to give her daughter a life of possibilities. She makes time daily to listen and validate her thoughts and keen insight. She is grateful for the play therapy that is afforded to her child. She relishes the conversations and the expressions of her daughter's feelings, a skill her child has learned through counseling. Kristina plans to obtain a certification in Recovery Coach Training and begin anew helping others to find the community of recovery. She is the face of RecovHERy.

FROM OUR CEO

As you probably know, Santa Maria has been serving Houston and the surrounding areas since the mid 1950's. We have continued to evolve to meet community needs by expanding and refining our continuum of care. With this 2018 impact report, Strong Families, we focus on our growth in family-based services. Studies show that individuals do much better in recovery with family support and understanding. In addition, research has shown the profound impact traumatic experiences, such as maternal substance use, loss or removal of a parent, or child abuse and neglect, have on a child's developing brain. Thankfully, research has also shown that strengthening the bond between parent and child (improving maternal-child attachment) is a strong protective factor and can help children overcome these early adverse experiences. We have been developing and expanding our services to help families build resiliency, improve parent-child attachment, and address issues such as addiction, mental health, incarceration and housing instability as early as possible in a child's life so that families are equipped with the skills and support they need to thrive. Related to this, we have expanded our community-based services for pregnant women, their infants and families by strengthening ties with clinic and healthcare partners and improving the system of care to best support mothers and their families prenatally and beyond. Through these efforts, we hope to impact not only individual families, but also reduce maternal and infant morbidity and mortality and improve community health outcomes.

In addition, we were thrilled to achieve national CARF (Commission on Accreditation of Rehabilitation Facilities) accreditation in 2018 for detoxification/withdrawal management, residential treatment and outpatient treatment. This certification recognizes our commitment to excellence in service quality, and we pledge to continue to deliver our services with the highest level of professionalism and compassion.

SINCERELY,

NADINE SCAMP, LMSW
